

A.W.B. Simpson: a bibliography

compiled by Jules Winterton

This is a bibliography of the published works of Alfred William Brian Simpson listed in various bibliographies, library catalogues and indexing services from the early 1950s until about February 1999. The breadth of his interests has necessitated a wide search. An attempt has been made to be comprehensive but such attempts inevitably do not succeed and the compiler will be glad to receive a note of any works omitted.

The works are arranged as far as possible by date of publication from earliest to most recent within four sections: books, articles and book contributions, book reviews, and selected newspaper items. I hope this arrangement may be appropriate in a work celebrating a scholar's work over his career and give some insight into the development of his interests. For those who would like to trace particular works, there are an alphabetical list by title, a simple subject index, and a list of books reviewed at the end of the bibliography. Each work in the bibliography has a number and the lists and indexes refer to those numbers.

A work is listed each time it was published. The title index can be used to trace all instances of publication of a work under a single title. If a work was explicitly published in revised form under a different title, a note is provided.

The bibliography is of works written by Professor Simpson but not works about him. It would have been almost impossible to include, for example, the vast number of reviews of his works. There are a few exceptions: some articles are mentioned in notes where they were written in reply to his articles and a few newspaper items are included where they mention him by name. Reports of official committees on which he sat are also included.

I should like to acknowledge the assistance of Professor David Sugarman and Paul Norman, Senior Reference Librarian at the Institute of Advanced Legal Studies, as well as Professor Simpson himself.
