Administration Policy Of 'Practical Defense' Upheld by Pittman

Senate Foreign Relations Chairman, in Forum, Speaks, Hits Fear

Senator Key Pittman of Nevada, chairman of the Senate Foreign Relations Committee, last night on "Our Foreign Policy" in the National Radio Forum, sponsored by The Star and broadcast over a Nationwide network of the National Broadcasting Co. The text of his address follows:

I am called to-day by invitation of the National Radio Forum, sponsored by The Star and broadcast over a Nationwide network of the National Broadcasting Co. This also clearly ex-

State of the problem is governed by the necessity of isolating the European nations as the greatest menace to the safety of our country. The policy Of Isolation is composed of four main branches: 1. The policy of defense. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the aggressive intentions of foreign nations. 2. The policy of appeasement. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the aggressions of other nations. 3. The policy of conquest. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the conquest of other nations. 4. The policy of isolation. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the isolation of other nations.

The policy of defense is composed of four main branches: 1. The policy of military force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the military force of foreign nations. 2. The policy of diplomacy. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the diplomatic force of foreign nations. 3. The policy of strategy. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the strategic force of foreign nations. 4. The policy of isolation. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the isolation of foreign nations.

The policy of appeasement is composed of four main branches: 1. The policy of economic force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the economic force of foreign nations. 2. The policy of cultural force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the cultural force of foreign nations. 3. The policy of political force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the political force of foreign nations. 4. The policy of military force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the military force of foreign nations.

The policy of conquest is composed of four main branches: 1. The policy of economic force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the economic force of foreign nations. 2. The policy of cultural force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the cultural force of foreign nations. 3. The policy of political force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the political force of foreign nations. 4. The policy of military force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the military force of foreign nations.

The policy of isolation is composed of four main branches: 1. The policy of economic force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the economic force of foreign nations. 2. The policy of cultural force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the cultural force of foreign nations. 3. The policy of political force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the political force of foreign nations. 4. The policy of military force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the military force of foreign nations.

The policy of defense is composed of four main branches: 1. The policy of military force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the military force of foreign nations. 2. The policy of diplomacy. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the diplomatic force of foreign nations. 3. The policy of strategy. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the strategic force of foreign nations. 4. The policy of isolation. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the isolation of foreign nations.

The policy of appeasement is composed of four main branches: 1. The policy of economic force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the economic force of foreign nations. 2. The policy of cultural force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the cultural force of foreign nations. 3. The policy of political force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the political force of foreign nations. 4. The policy of military force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the military force of foreign nations.

The policy of conquest is composed of four main branches: 1. The policy of economic force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the economic force of foreign nations. 2. The policy of cultural force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the cultural force of foreign nations. 3. The policy of political force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the political force of foreign nations. 4. The policy of military force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the military force of foreign nations.

The policy of isolation is composed of four main branches: 1. The policy of economic force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the economic force of foreign nations. 2. The policy of cultural force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the cultural force of foreign nations. 3. The policy of political force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the political force of foreign nations. 4. The policy of military force. This policy includes the protection of the United States from the military force of foreign nations.
Does any one doubt that Hitler has the determination of any one of the recent dictators? As a matter of fact, we know that the three dictatorial powers are increasing their populations and influence in Asia, Africa, and Latin America. We know that these dictatorial powers are through every means, monetary, financial, and political, preparing for the domination of Latin America. Of course, this penetration into: Latin America does not necessarily mean conquest. But the less we do until we will not become: frequent until and unless these dictatorial powers have obtained such domination in Europe and Asia as to permit them to move in force in Europe and America. This Is the history of the acts, at least, of the dictator, powers. Their violation of our neutral rights and our Congress asserted the rights of our citizens under international law. That law was defined as to neutrals—neutrals, at any rate, who were not associated with any belligerents. No ship of neutrals could be destroyed even when trading with a belligerent, short of war. We will not fight in the World War denied neutral rights. We are prepared only to fight for our own lives. The only difference was that side did not destroy lives, and the other side did.

President Wilson protested against the violation of our neutral rights in the World War. The United States was impelled to ask for a declaration of war. The President, in his message to Congress, clearly stated our policy, as I have attempted to reproduce here. We will resist, without alliance, to defend our own lives. We will not use our strength, until our own country has been attacked. We will not fight against the threat to our own shores? Why further Impose upon the
In his program the domination of Europe and Asia by the three dictator powers. Does this affect us? I pass the question of our foreign policy. Why further impose upon the credit and the face of our government a war of "appeasement or isolation that have not made peaceful or war for war's sake. Our foreign policy is based upon conquest and military domination. We will not...